Glendale, Cal., January 20, 1911

We are indebted to Assemblyman Chas. H. Randall for a copy of the program of ceremonies attendant upon the inauguration of Gov. Johnson and Lieut. Gov. A. J. Wallace at the capital on Jan. 3rd; also for other papers of interest.

We are indebted to Dr. Matthew Campbell for a copy of the Cunard Daily Bulletin, published on the steamship Mauretania, in mid-ocean, Dec. 19, 1909. It is a 32-page pamphlet published daily during voyages. It is a well edited publication, containing much interesting matter. The most noticeable feature is the "Marconigrams," wireless dispatches giving news from shore of same date.

Surely Providence is favoring Southern California above all other portions of this continent. Elsewhere the rigors of winter are gripping the land and the people who dwell therein; here it is not summer, but an atmosphere with a suggestion of frost mixed with a glorious sunshine from a cloudless sky. And the rain, so essential to our wellbeing and to guarantee an abundant harvest in crops of the field, the orchard and the garden, has fallen at the right time and in quantity abundant upon the grateful earth.

"He sendeth the rain upon the dry places and forgetteth not His children in the day of their need."

Senator-elect Works says that he owes his election to "Meyer Lissner and Christian Science." Furthermore that he was assisted greatly by being able to "keep the right thought in his mind." In other words he applied the faith cure to the delegates who ought to have voted for Spalding but didn't. This relieves Lissner of considerable responsibility. Is it not found in the Scriptures, "Faith without Works is dead?"

Senator Works takes pleasure apparently in announcing that he is a "progressive" and "insurgent" Republican. This means, if anything, that he favors a general reduction of the tariff. But the California lemon grower need have no fear; it will be plain enough when it comes to voting, that Mr. Works favors taking the protection from the wicked New England manufacturer, but will do all that he can to keep as high a tariff as possible on the sacred products of California!

Which thought impels us to say again that "insurgency" founded upon the tariff question is rank humbug. Even the Little Napoleon of insurgency, Senator LaFollette will not yield one jot or tittle of the protection afforded by the tariff to the products of Wisconsin!

THE CASE OF SUPERVISOR PRIDHAM.

Everyone will be glad to see the unfortunate victim of the accident at the Wash secure a verdict for damages resulting from her fall into the trap that is still set on Brand boulevard. No doubt the ruling of Judge Houser in the case is good law, but of the law itself no one can entertain a very high opinion. That it should be legally impossible to secure damages against a county, seems almost incredible in a state that is supposed to be in the fore front of progress. The verdict against Mr. Pridham may be set aside by the supreme court; or it is possible that the legislature will put through a special bill for his relief and at once proceed to repeal the existing law and replace it by a statute framed on the lines of common sense. It is unreasonable to hold a supervisor personally responsible for the condition of every foot of road in his district; there would be more justice in placing it on the shoulders of the road overseer, if upon any individual, and a law of that sort would certainly leave many vacancies in these minor but responsible positions.

SELF EDUCATION.

Prof. Lucien Larkin, the noted astronomer, is a striking example of the possibilities of self culture. It is said of him that he is practically without any school education. It is not casting any reflections upon the schools to say that they have no monopoly of the educative machinery of life. We believe that the average youth spends too many years within the school house walls. The boy or girl who from six to sixteen spends one-half of their waking hours in school, is far from being well educated and it does not follow that his or her education will be satisfactory if four or five years more of the "higher education" is added to it. The proportion of college bred men may be greater than it was a generation ago, but it is doubtful whether a larger proportion of our successful men have been familiar with the inside even of a "high school," and certainly among those who have achieved fame are many who, like Lincoln and Edison, have found within themselves and outside in the wide world the means of education which they needed. The superintendent of schools in California advocates prohibiting the school children from home study. The tendency of this idea if generally put into effect will be to inculcate in the mind of the child the idea that there is no place else than the school house where it is proper or necessary to study. On the contrary the growing generation should have instilled into their minds the thought that the schools are accessories of education merely and their value to the individual student depends upon the use that he makes of them. Meanwhile the boy or girl deprived of the advantages of the schools should be taught that the loss is not irreparable, self-education is attainable by those who diligently seek it.

CONCENTRATION.

Years ago some mathematician announced after a long period spent in wrestling with the figures, that he had discovered that if all the fleas on all the dogs in Constantinople should jump at once in the same direction, their united force would be sufficient to carry a man over the Bosphorus. We never heard whether the mathematical gentleman ever got the Constantinople fleas to jumping in unison. Perhaps he did and has therefore never been heard from since. But be that as it may, there was in his idea the germ of a great and indisputable truth. Men are endowed with such a wealth of possibility; the Creator has been so lavish in his gifts to man that the unappreciative creature spends the most of his days in wasted effort. Over in the mystery land of India where civilization and the invigorating atmosphere of the Occident have not robbed the human of his intimacy with the forces of nature, when the wise man wishes to accomplish some great thing, he retires to some remote spot far from the busy hum of modern life and concentrates—bends all the forces of his intellect in one direction, his will compelling the mind to his task. And if you want to believe the stories they tell about these sages, you will know that they bend the most potent forces of nature to their will! But they say it takes years of very hard thinking to produce even a very small shower out of a clear sky. Fortunately concentration can be accomplished to some extent at least this side of India; possibly the lonely mountain may make the task easier, but it is not really essential. Cases are not uncommon in which a young man has quite early in life made a determination to win some very high position and although there seemed at the time the resolve was made very little chance indeed for his success, he has not yet succeeded. If the individual can by persistent effort accomplish so much, is it unreasonable to believe in the great things possible to the association of individuals working together for a common cause? It is said that in the state of Iowa recently, a public road was built across the state in one day by the concentrated intelligently directed effort of ten thousand people! In every community there are plenty of objects worth working for, objects which everyone must agree are worthy, and how easy would be their attainment if as with one mind the community would work for them! But this requires that there must be no hanging back owing to a difference of opinion as to details. It presupposes that everyone in the community will lay aside personal prejudices and preferences and be willing to submerge one's self in the whole and then strive for the good of the whole! The failure of so many efforts in the direction of the common good, is always due to the same cause, some of those who should work for the good of all and receive a fair proportion of the benefit, insist that they shall be preferred stockholders receiving more than their fair proportion out of the general fund.

To get down to an application of the concentration theory as applied to local affairs. There are certain objects the attainment of which is generally conceded to be desirable. They can be secured by no one individual, nor by a few, but by concentrated effort all things are possible.

This side of the millennium, the dawn of which is not yet apparent, individuals will differ in their opinions, particularly as to details, but they need not differ as to the main things desirable. It should therefore be possible for a community to unite upon some one thing or more that all agree would be for the welfare of all, and resolutely set aside all petty differences, jealousies, suspicions, sectionalism, and concentrate for the common good. A community that will do this, will rapidly push ahead of all other contestants, for no advantage given a place by nature is equal in value to the asset possessed by the community that works together, pulls together—concentrates for the welfare of the whole.

STATE UNIVERSITY FOR SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA.

The NEWS has received the following circular:

Los Angeles, Cal.

To the People of California:

The effort now being made for the establishment of a state university in Southern California is well under way. Success at this session of the legislature depends upon the people of Southern California. If we are united, determined and vigorous in our efforts victory is sure.

Southern California needs a state university for the proper education of its high school graduates.

Stanford and California are already crowded, and the state university is clamoring for immediate enlargement.

The phenomenal growth of high schools in California, a growth steadily increasing in magnitude and in efficiency, guarantees that within four years, thousands of pupils will be excluded from Stanford and California because of lack of room, or else one or both of those universities must be doubled in capacity.

At the present time the bulk of the graduates of Southern California do not go to the universities because they cannot. The distance, and the cost because of that distance, are prohibitive. In like manner many are shut out of local colleges, because those colleges must charge tuition fees as high as their support.

To enlarge the University of California is an immediate necessity, but that enlargement does not change conditions in our midst. It will not bring the university nearer nor reduce the cost of attendance thereat.

Of Southern California's 1698 high school graduates in 1910, less than 220 enrolled at Berkeley this fall. There is not any prospect of a larger percentage enrolling in the future. Shall we be at ease in the face of such a condition? Shall we beguile ourselves with the notion that our boys and girls have that fair and equal chance which they deserve, or shall we realize our need and strive earnestly to satisfy that need?

The university committee of one hundred, through its executive committee, has decided upon a definite line of action as follows:

First, to work for the establishment of a genuine state university in Southern California.

Second, to work for an appropriation of $1,000,000, half of this sum to be used in 1911-12 and half in 1912-13.

Third, to secure offers of free sites of not less than one hundred acres.

Fourth, to work for the opening of the university with a freshman class only in 1912, and another class each year thereafter until the university is serving all who desire to attend.

The university committee does not favor the selection of any particular site, nor is it attempting to dictate policy for the university when the same shall have been established.

The selection of a site, the choice of a president and his associates, and the shaping of the educational policy and procedure of the university will be among the duties devolving upon the board of regents.

You are most cordially and earnestly invited and urged to support this endeavor in every way that you can.

The committee suggests that you can assist by throwing the weight of your influence in favor of the movement, by interesting others, by writing to your representatives in the state legislature, by securing favorable newspaper support for the movement, and by removing any opposition which may have developed in your community.

The committee will greatly appreciate your support and assistance.

THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE, of the University Com. of One Hundred.

HENRY E. HUNTINGTON, Chairman. By Mark Keppel, Vice Chairman.

Mrs. R. H. Wells of 1504 Fourth street, was hostess of Mrs. Robert Morris at a daintily appointed luncheon Tuesday. Decorations were of ferns and chrysanthemums.

WEST GLENDALE

Remember the "Big Edition" of the NEWS—Don't fail to secure a copy.

Don't fail to order your copy or copies of the "Big Edition," and show your eastern friends what kind of a place Glendale is.

Usual services at the West Glendale M. E. church next Sunday, January 22, 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Church, Pacific avenue and Fifth street. A. Bellonison, pastor.

The farmers throughout the greater part of the valley, around San Fernando's immense grain fields, in particular, have done their part, their crops being all in, and are now waiting for Mr. J. Pluvius to do the rest. They wish to thank him for what he has already done—but would like to have all he can spare.

Night-watchman J. W. Everett, who has been off duty for some time, is still confined to his home on Hawthorne street, but under the skilful treatment of Dr. Chase expects to return to his beat before long, and then, all you who stay out at night beware, and be on your good behavior or "Sunny Jim" will get you if you don't watch out.

Building still keeps up at a brisk pace. New homes on every side, some under cover, some with their frames up, and others with merely the foundations started, but they are all there, just the same. A fine five-room bungalow is being erected in Ivy street, near Central, and the beautiful and artistic home of Ross B. Boyd on Ivy and Columbus, is rapidly nearly completed, and makes an excellent showing.

The petitions recently sent out by Mark Keppel, county superintendent of schools, asking for a state university in Southern California are being met with approval everywhere. The children of the various schools have been circulating these petitions and have secured many signers. It is to be hoped the petition will carry without any trouble, as a state university in or near Los Angeles would be a decided advantage to all those who wish to attend, and are now obliged to travel so far in order to reach them and would be a great advertisement for our part of the state.

HAPPILY MARRIED.

At the residence of Rev. Dr. A. B. Morrison, 1327 Sixth street, Glendale, January 16th, Mr. Edward E. Currier and Miss Marie Biancamano, both of San Diego. A few personal friends were in attendance.

Parent-Teachers' Meeting.

The regular meeting was held at the school on Thursday, January 12. An excellent musical program by the pupils, preceded the business session. Program as follows: Violin solo, Daniel Campbell, the young man carrying off high honors. Piano duet, Wm. and Frank Balthis, which won hearty applause from all present. Two numbers by the school orchestra, which showed the excellent training that the musical director, Mrs. Gibson, has been so faithfully giving them, and also showing that "Practice makes perfect."

After the program a "Question Box" was opened and resulted in many very interesting and important questions being discussed. All those interested in these meetings are earnestly requested to be present at the home of Mrs. Payne, corner of Central and Doran streets, on January 25, for an all-day sewing bee for the benefit of the emergency department. Clothing, undergarments in particular, are very much in demand by the poor of Los Angeles, and the result of the afternoon's work will be turned over to that cause. Every one should try and come. The date of regular meeting has been changed from the second Thursday to the third Thursday in each month.

A DELIGHTFUL OCCASION.

Those who attended the Mystery Tea at the West Glendale M. E. church on Friday last united in saying that they spent a most delightful evening. Among the many games in the evening's program was the game of states. Each group of states being obliged to give some stunt with which to amuse the rest of the crowd. Ohio responded with some excellent numbers, no wonder, for a finer looking crowd couldn't be found anywhere. New York wasn't to be laughed at, or in this case it was. George Peter's harmonica solo, was so low that it was heartily appreciated by every one. Indiana called for the hearty peals of laughter, and the mixed quartet with Rev. Morrison as leader, was simply grand. Kentucky was a hit of the evening, even Kansas, where it gets so dry at times that one is obliged to "put the pigs to soak over night in order that they may hold sour milk," was there, with a large delegation of "suckers." About every state in the Union was there except Missouri and she or he failed to show me. The supper which was a very mysterious affair, was ordered by numbers, and one poor hungry fellow received a glass of water a toothpick, with which to remove all surplus from the cavities of his wisdom teeth, and a napkin. But, right here, let me tell you, the cup of coffee that was served was the best ever, and the doughnuts were certainly not like a definition seen in a city paper recently.—Doughnut, a hole surrounded by bad cooking. For any one who can make them better or as good as they were, are few and far between.

The evening's entertainment together with the supper was certainly well worth the small sum of ten cents which every one was held up for, and quite a neat little sum was realized from the same.

The Sting of a Bee.

An eastern fable tells of a potentate who demanded that there should be brought to him the stings of a thousand bees killed because one of their colony had dared commit lese majesty by stinging the hand of royalty. When they were brought in a tiny golden thimble the king was so amazed to find that a thousand of the hypodermic points made such a little mass that he issued a manifesto to the effect that thereafter no person within the bounds of the kingdom should complain at the sting of a bee. The lesson of the fable is that petty annoyances hurt because they are exaggerated in the mind; that when they are seen in their actual proportions they are so slight as to merit only contempt. How much comfort would come to the majority of persons if they could but see the tiny size of the bee stings that lead them to acts of petulance, words of anger, expressions of reproach. The bee sting annoyances have caused lifelong breaches of friendship. They have broken up families and caused anger and resentment to take the place of love and fealty.—Baltimore American.

The Mississippi of Streets.

A street is like a river, with its human current carrying all manner of drift between its banks of residences or shops on either side. And if this simile be appropriate then New York's Broadway is the Mississippi of streets. Probably no other avenue in the world presents so many contrasts in the flotsam and jetsam it carries from Harlem to the Battery. Every type of humanity—uprooted saplings from farms and orchards, proud hulled craft in silks and satins—may be described in the surging mass. Banker and boot-black, the swaggering swell and the dragged derelict, walk shoulder to shoulder—rush, rather, for Broadway is a maelstrom, the embodiment of New York's bustle and hurry, the place where nothing can stand still. Richard Harding Davis once said that everybody "seems to be trying to reach the bank to have a check cashed before 3 o'clock."—George Selbel in Pittsburg Gazette-Times.

Queer Collateral.

"Here is a fact as strange as it is true," said an Egyptologist. "Mummies in ancient Egypt were used chiefly as collateral."

"When an Egyptian wanted to borrow he gave his father's or grandfather's mummy as security. Sometimes, if he required a large sum, he gave his father and both grandfathers, and he would even throw in the mummy of his mother-in-law if she fortunately happened to be in a mummified state."

"Joking aside," the Egyptologist continued, "what I tell you is the truth. An Egyptian was not permitted to borrow without pledging the mummy of some near relative. It was deemed in Egypt both impious and infamous not to redeem so sacred a pledge as that, and he who died with a family mummy still in pawn was himself buried in unconsecrated ground."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The Postage Stamp.

Consider the postage stamp. It says nothing regarding the difficulty of the task assigned to it, but by dint of close application it usually gets there; also it delivers the goods.

Again, if one isn't enough to carry the thing through, two or more by working harmoniously together see the thing to a finish.

No matter if the (mail) matter be weighty, it puts a good face (of Washington) on it and goes directly to the point. It gets looked and stamped upon, and men besmirch its fair features and oftentimes give it more to carry than the postal union allows. But, in spite of all this, it sticks unflinchingly to the matter in hand by virtue of the fact that it knows that it has good backing.

Its stick-to-it-ivity is worthy of emulation by you.—Judge's Library.

Water Colors.

Water color painting was gradually raised from the hard, dry style of the eighteenth century to its present brilliancy by the efforts of Nicholson, Copley, Sanley and others. The Water Color society's exhibitions began in 1805 and may be said to mark the real beginning of modern water color painting. The great master, if not creator, of the art was the celebrated Turner, of whom we read so much in the works of John Ruskin.—Exchange.

How Old They Were.

"I see you employ a number of old men."

"I do."

"How old are they?"

"Too old to be interested in canoeing or mandolins or race horses or girls or tennis. That makes them fine for work."—Washington Herald.

Rather.

The subjoined item appeared in a French newspaper:

"There was found in the river this morning the body of a soldier cut to pieces and sewed up in a sack. The circumstances seem to preclude any suspicion of suicide."

Customs and Habits.

Our customs and habits are like the rats in roads. The wheels of life set the into them, and we jog along through the mire because it is too much trouble to get out of them.

A Knowing Dog.

"That mastiff of mine would as lief chew a man to pieces as not," said Andrew, adding, "Of course I don't mean anybody he knows."

"I got a fearful fierce dog, too," said Jake, who lived down on the other road. "Mine wouldn't hurt nobody he knows, neither. Why, there was a day last summer when that dog tore out toward the road so fast that me and my wife couldn't stop him, and we see he was headed for a mite of a child that had strayed down the road from the Dickinson place. The child was too scared to cry. The dog was just about to spring at the baby's throat when he stopped short, kind of puzzled like, and went up and sniffed of the baby. All at once he gave a loud bark and wagged his tail and jumped around joyous."

"Me and my wife got there as quick as we could and the baby's folks came runnin' down the road at the same time, half scared to death. They turned out to be a couple who had boarded with us two or three years before, when we lived on the old place. They was on their honeymoon then and got acquainted with the dog. And the dog had recognized that baby as belongin' to them, though he never seen it before."—Cleveland Leader.

Knocking.

A word and a lift for your fellow
Is better than knocking his play,
And if you can't speak to him kindly
Be square and have nothing to say.

A dollar or two to a creature
Far down in the depths of despair
Is better than knocking on morals
And preaching a lot of hot air.

A hope for the glory of heaven
Is better than doubting the plan
Or knocking the plea of salvation
Established for God given man.

—J. A. Joyce.

Caught a Tartar.

Mary was a buxom country lass, and her father was an upright deacon in a Connecticut village. Mary's plan of joining the boys and girls in a nutting party was frustrated by the unexpected arrival of a number of the "brethren" on their way to conference, and Mary had to stay at home and get dinner for her father's clerical guests. Her already ruffled temper was increased by the reverend visitors themselves, who sat about the stove and in the way.

One of the good ministers noticed the wrathful impatience and, desiring to rebuke the sinful manifestations, said sternly, "Mary, what do you think will be your occupation in hell?"

"Pretty much the same as it is on earth," she replied, "cooking for ministers."

Getting an Autograph.

Ellis Parker Butler was a clerk in a Muscatine spice mill when Bill Nye came across his horizon. The night Mr. Nye showed at that town Butler occupied a seat in the first gallery—from the roof. The sad-eyed humorist pleased him so that he decided to write for an autograph. He wanted it for the front page of his stamp album. A carefully worded epistle brought no reply, whereupon the industrious youth wrote another and another. No answers. Undaunted, he got a line on the route of his celebrity and developed an inspiration somewhat as follows:

Edgar Wilson Nye, Esq., Planter's Hotel,
St. Louis, Mo.:
Dear Mr. Nye—I have been writing to you rather persistently. The reason is that I have discovered a new cure. I want to name it after you and use your picture on the box. I know that you are a busy man. If I do not hear from you soon I will consider that you have given your consent. Very respectfully yours,
ELLIS P. BUTLER.

By return mail came:

E. P. Butler, Muscatine, Ia.:
Sir—Don't you dare to put my picture on any corn salve box! I most certainly do not give my consent to have the stuff named after me. I am commonly considered a good natured man, but have a care! You'll know the reason if you don't.
EDGAR WILSON NYE.

She Was Fat.

The small boy had been warned by his nurse as to the awful result of biting his nails.

"If you bite your nails," she said, "you will swell out like an air balloon and burst."

The small boy believed, took heed and didn't bite his nails any more. The small boy went to a children's party, where he stood and gazed at the hostess for some minutes in silence. Then he spoke.

"You bite your nails," he said.

A Real Cute Crab.

Eugene Blackford, at one time fish commissioner of New York, was standing in the door of his office in Fulton market one day when a literary woman came up to him and said: "Mr. Blackford, I am gathering material for an article on crabs. Do you think those little crustaceans have the faculty of reasoning?"

"Well, madam," replied Mr. Blackford, "I have never given the subject much thought, but I have known crabs to do some remarkable things. Last summer I was fishing for flounders in Jamaica bay. The water was shallow, and I could easily see the bottom. A crab sidled up to my bait, picked up the hook with one claw, took off the bait with the other, ate it and then climbed up the line hand over hand, tumbled into the boat and went nosing around looking for the bait box. If that isn't reason, it certainly is a very high degree of instinct."

SATURDAY NIGHT SERMONS

BY
REV. SAMUEL W. PURVIS, D.D.

THOU SHALT NOT.

Text, "Whoso breaketh a hedge a serpent shall bite him."—Ecc. X, 8.

"Thou shalt not!" Who said so? God. But why shan't I? There's a reason; You need not know it—possibly couldn't understand. When you tell your little three-year-old that coffee isn't good for children you don't bother explaining about caffeine, the active and dangerous alkaloid of coffee. You might as well read Kant's "Critique." Butler's "Analogy" or Browning's poems. Her nervous system will become just as strong by obeying your "thou shalt not" as if you had tried to explain. It ought not to embarrass you to learn that you must believe first and be taught afterward. You knew your multiplication table long before you could prove it. Most of your knowledge came that way. The "thou shalt not" is a hedge. The purpose of a hedge is not to annoy, but to protect. Uncle Sam maintains 3,000 beacon lights, 6,000 buoys and signals along his coast. Each one says, "Thou shalt not!" No mariner is quite such a fool as to think Uncle Sam a bullying policeman with a big stick.

"Don't Go Out the Gate!"

Federal days had moats with drawbridges. Then came walled cities, then houses with brick and stone walls. Our colonists built stockades; after the Indians had gone, board fences, then the picket and almost invisible wire or a bed of geraniums—now none! "Johnny, don't go out the gate," mother used to say. Now Johnny plays on the street. Whether he did better among the lilacs and the old fashioned sweet williams protected by the hedge or out in the street dodging automobiles and flipping cigarette pictures is a question. It's an age of transition. Following the trend of things, we are tearing down many fences. They're so old foggyish! There was a time when folks got married and they said, "For better, for worse, till death do us part." That was the understanding, and they meant it. If they had a tiff they made it up long before communion Sunday at the old church. But the marriage fence seems tottering. Only one in eight stands! Reno has a permanent settlement, and our wives get circulars mailed from there at the breakfast table. They are busy tearing down the old Sabbath fence our forefathers thought was so necessary for the safety of the republic. Even the theological professors are feverishly removing the barriers about the Bible. Stars! We can remember when mother used to read those wonderful Bible stories to us. We thought they were true, but it seems not. Of course fences are antiquated and outlandish. That verse about "Remove not the ancient landmarks which thy fathers set" must be all folderol.

Hedges Are Law.

Sin says, "Don't bother about the hedges." When you read tomorrow morning's paper you will scan the story of the suicides, murders, home wreckings, sensational trials. The whole surface of the social sea seems strewn with this human flotsam. Who are they? They are the hedge breakers, and the serpent has bitten them. They have broken some law. Law makes the earth revolve. Light follows darkness. Spring, summer, autumn and winter follow in endless procession with their flowers, harvests, fruits and snows. It is law that lets birds fly, fish swim, cattle to roam in the field. If a fish leaps on the shore it has broken a hedge; if a beast remains under water it has broken a hedge; if a plant should refuse water it will have broken a hedge. The serpent of penalty will bite them. The penalty and broken law go together like fire and heat. We are hedged in with law—natural law, civil law, social law, commercial law, common law, moral law, ecclesiastical law, international law. Law is the throne on which the Almighty sits. You can't break one of these laws with impunity. That story back in Eden doesn't have to be true. There are hundreds of cases before the public eye today where men and women have closed the gates of paradise on themselves. God help us! The brambles of the hedge have scratched us more than once.

The Sting of the Serpent.

Better keep hands off the hedge. Before sundown of your little day you will feel a festering wound. It means restraint—in the family, parental authority; in the social circle, conventionality and Mrs. Grundy; in the church, still more stringent limitations. How you envy the bohemians! Will it never cease? Never, from cradle to grave. Children hardly move without "don'ts." You will outgrow those "don'ts" only to encounter others. Seems tyrannical? You can reach through and get the coveted thing—others have—but you get it only as the mouse gets the bait in the trap. Fame comes slow. You can become notorious in an hour. Want money without earning it? You can, but theft and embezzlement are on the other side of the hedge. Want to gratify passion? First visit the municipal hospital. Want your social glass? Better not. Red light ahead! Hedges are really rails put along the sides of life's footbridge. They limit your liberty, true, but they limit your danger. The night may be dark, the sky starless—those rails are your safety. They shut you out, but they also shut you in. Would you let your child walk the footbridge without them? Neither would God.

Entertaining Royalty.

Nothing puts a bigger feather in the cap of a society hostess, says the London Saturday Journal, or at the same time causes her more anxious cares and thought than mere expenditure than the presence at one of her dinners or dances in the huge Mayfair mansion of a member of the royal family—most of all the king and queen. The entertaining of royalty is one of the most delicate triumphs the society woman, whether she be a duchess or merely a millionairess, can achieve. It has a code of etiquette all to itself—a code which must be rigidly observed or no hope is there of ever securing another visit from a royal guest of the reigning house. The number of titled and untitled guests bidden to meet the sovereign at, say, a dinner party is strictly limited and of course highly select. On one occasion $20,000 was spent by a hostess in entertaining a crowned head for a week end, while another example is that of a certain baronet who had a marble staircase put in his house solely because of an approaching visit from the late king.

A Remarkable Escape.

During the reign of terror in Paris one of the most remarkable escapes was that of M. de Chateaubrun. He was sent to execution with twenty other prisoners, but after the fifteenth head had fallen the guillotine got out of order and a workman was sent for to repair it. The six remaining victims were left standing in front of the machines with their hands tied behind them. A French crowd is very curious, and the people kept pressing forward to see the man arranging the guillotine. By degrees M. de Chateaubrun, who was to the rear of his companions, found himself in the front line of the spectators, then in the second and finally well behind those who had come to see his head cut off. Before the men could get the guillotine in working order night began to fall, and M. de Chateaubrun slipped away. When in the Champs Elysees he told a man that a wag had tied his hands and robbed him of his hat, and this simple individual set him free. A few days later M. de Chateaubrun escaped from France.

Due Precautions.

In a town in Georgia there was an old preacher whose knowledge of the world was not wide nor deep, but who conceived it to be a place where, if one should trust his fellow men, he should at the same time keep an eye on his own interests.

One hot day he pulled off his coat and preached a vigorous sermon under the pines in his shirt sleeves. At the close of the open air service one of his admirers approached him and said regretfully:

"I don't suppose you knew that the editor of one of the big New York Sunday papers was here when you pulled off your coat."

"I reckon I knew it well, for I'd been told of it," said the preacher calmly.

"I don't believe he's as bad as he might be, and anyway I put my coat on the chair close by and had it right under my eye all the time."—Youth's Companion.

More Story of the Flood.

The legend of the flood as told by the Moros is as follows:

"When the forty days and nights of rain came No and his family got into a box. One pair of each sort of bird and beast also came in. Men who were busy with their ordinary occupations and did not enter the box were overtaken by the flood. Those who ran to the mountains became monkeys; those who ran to the water, fish. The Chinaman changed to a hornbill. A woman who was eating the fruit of a seaweed and would not stop was changed into a fish called a dugong, and her limbs can still be seen under its skin."

Mama's Voice.

Mme. Mara had a voice that extended from middle G to E in alt and was one of the most facile and flexible ever known. She delighted in the florid music of Hasse, Graun, Benda, Jomelli, Pergalese, Porpora, Sacchini and others of that school and with the utmost ease executed passages that are now consigned to solo instruments, such as the violin and flute. She held the stage from 1771 to 1802, with an occasional appearance after the latter date.

His Bedtime.

"When do you wind your watch," asked the man with the bulging brow—"morning or evening?"

"Generally in the morning," answered the man with the bulbous nose.

"I always wind mine just before I go to bed."

"Well—er—so do I."—Chicago Tribune.

What She Would Do.

"Johnnie, dear," said his mother, who was trying to inculcate a lesson in industry, "what do you suppose mamma would do for you if you should come to her some day and tell her that you loved your studies?"

"Lick me for telling a falsehood," said dear little Johnnie with the frankness of youth.

A Quick Return Business.

"You said you were going into some business that would bring you quick returns," said a young fellow to his chum.

"I did," was the answer. "I am sending manuscripts to the magazines."

A Nice Bull.

An Irishman, quarrelling with an Englishman, told him if he didn't hold his tongue he would "break his impeneable head and let the brains out of his empty skull."

PARK BUILDING.

How Best to Enhance Landscape Beauty and Improve Parkways.

Unless a park area is to be added to it is always best to outline it with some tree growth, especially if it be large and of varied topography. There are many reasons for this boundary planting, and one or more will at once appeal to all who give the subject a moment's thought.

After a park is outlined the hills should be planted to tall trees to make the natural elevations appear still greater. For the same reason the canyons should be planted to shrubs and a strip of irregular but sufficient width be left in the floor of each canyon unplanted. Protection from fires should be one of the first considerations in any large park tract, and fire lines should be cleared up on all ridges of a good width, but these should follow the eccentricities of the ridges and not run in straight lines. Where trees of any size occur in these precautionary trails they should always be left, the trail made wider at such points and care be observed that none of the lower branches of trees hang within several feet of the ground.

Aside from the planting of tall trees on the peaks and ridges and low shrubbery in the depths, light, feathery foliage of light shades should be used in the lightest, sunniest spots (to heighten the effects of light and sunshine) and heavy leaved, dark colored trees should be used in dark or shady places. By this method of planting all natural effects of height and depth, light and shadow will be intensified, and exaggerated. After these fundamental steps have been taken, all looking to the improvement of landscape views, the uses of the park must be considered—for all the people, all the time, and the greatest possible enjoyment of the entire area. This will bring us to the problem of availability, and in all large areas a landscape engineer should be procured to survey the roads, but he should be held in check by some nature lover, for some engineers and surveyors have visited ruthless destruction on some beautiful landscapes to the point where they were not only dismised without pay, but were actually sued for damages. The intelligent choice of varieties of trees for the roadsides and parkways is a more important matter than often supposed. In selecting street trees for town or country longevity should be carefully considered. Short lived trees should not be planted, however desirable otherwise. The character of the trees when they are grown should also be carefully studied. Some varieties, very beautiful when young, are quite undesirable for the street when grown. Hardiness as to drought resisting qualities, extremes of temperatures, etc., as well as adaptation to special localities and soil conditions, must have attention.

SECTION OF A CITY PARK.

Nothing else will so quickly and easily raise cities and towns above the ordinary as the extensive planting of suitable street trees. Now, all these places are beautiful only in spots. In large sections of all streets there are nothing to be seen but a weed grown parkway, and where trees exist there are often a half dozen sorts to a block, and of these many are undesirable. Many trees are uncared for, some gnawed by horses, others hacked by linemen and the whole appearance anything but beautiful. But a parkway lined with suitable trees and tastefully laid out with good cement walks, well kept grass plots, beautiful flower beds and a few well selected shrubs adds wonderfully to the appearance of a town.—Los Angeles Times.

"KEEPING MONEY AT HOME."

To Be Consistent, Those Who Preach
This Plan Should Also Practice It.

People are not infrequently treated to lectures on the importance of patronizing "home industries." With much that is said on this subject we agree, but we go further and say that those who advocate this should also practice it. It would be well if the people of each state should give preference to articles manufactured in their own state. If this be done merchants must buy products of home factories. This would mean prosperity of home factories and larger markets at home for farm products, says Farm and Ranch.

When one is urged to "spend your money at home," it may be as well to ask the person giving advice if he practices what he advocates? If he does not, then he is patriotic "for revenue only" and has small claim to consideration.

If the products of each state were given preference, we should have factories near home and benefits which would come from that consideration.

We were told of a manufacturer of clothing in Lowell, Mass., who bought material for a large lot of clothing from a southern factory because he could get it for a less price. This is a reflection upon our people. There should have been no products of southern factories for sale at less prices in Lowell.

Again, we heard of one case in which products of a cannery were rejected by merchants of the home town and were shipped to a distant town for market. A merchant of the home town then bought a large bill of canned goods and when they arrived found them products of the home cannery.

To patronize home industries is best, but not best for consumers alone. It is as good for middlemen as for consumers and should be enforced against men who patriotically urge others to "keep your money at home."

Where do you buy your goods, Mr.
Merchant?

A COMMUNITY INVESTMENT.

How Good Schools Draw Citizens and Help to Build Up Towns.

More than a year ago a Rochester (N. Y.) manufacturer was seated in his office when a telephone message came from the chamber of commerce asking him to convey to Pittsburgh the city's invitation for the 1910 play congress. He at once replied that he was too busy to think of making the trip. A few moments after, while walking around his workshop, he noticed a new face. Upon inquiring he found that the workman had recently come up from the far south.

"How did you happen to come all this distance?" asked the manufacturer.

"Well," said the workman, "I thought of my three children. I wanted to give them all the advantages I could possibly afford. The schools in my small southern community were not as good as I wished. In some way I heard that the Rochester
it means for the future of my children and young people. It meant a good deal of a sacrifice, for I left a foreman's job in Georgia to work at the bench here. But when I think of what it means for the future of my children
the sacrifice is forgotten and I am glad I came."

It took scarcely a moment's reflection to lead the manufacturer back to his office, and his voice was soon traveling over the telephone wire to the chamber of commerce, saying that he would go to Pittsburgh to try to secure the play congress for the benefit of
it would be for all Rochester's children.

The time to advertise is all the

before the other fellow does.

Advertising and dynamite are both useful, but the results of each depend upon how it is handled.

make them take what they ought to have needs a real sales-

TROPICO

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Weston of this place, passed last Sunday with Dr. Margaret C. Goether of Pasadena.

Miss Alma Stone of East Tropic, was a guest last Saturday and Sunday of Miss Catherine Duncan of Los Angeles, formerly of this valley.

A meeting of the Fourth department of the Epworth League of the M. E. church was held at the home of Miss Josephine Cooke on Tenth street Tuesday evening.

J. A. Grant, the jeweler at Tropic, moved from Inglewood this week to Tropic. He has brought his family with him and has located on Blanche avenue.

The subject for the morning discourse at the Methodist church next Sunday will be "The Stranger—Do we want him in Tropic? If he comes, what will we do with him?"

Frank McKinley, proprietor of the Tropic Furniture and Hardware stores, has purchased a lot on Euclid street west of Brand boulevard, upon which he will soon start the erection of a $3500 home.

The Women's Home Missionary society of the Methodist church will meet in the church parlors next Tuesday. The Foreign Missionary society met with Mrs. C. C. Chandler on Tuesday afternoon of this week.

Mrs. Martha Augusta Mattice, aged 57 years, died at her home on Laurel avenue, Tropic, Friday last. The funeral service was held from the Pulliam Undertaking parlors Monday and interment was made at Forest Lawn cemetery.

The Western Art Tile works of Tropic changed hands this week. The new owners are recently from the East and intend spending considerable money on the plant and starting more hands at work immediately. Hereafter the works will be known as the Pacific Tile and Terra Cotta company.

Mr. Jones, who for the past several years has been the only cobbler at Tropic, is putting in a stock of shoes, etc., in the storehouse which he has rented on San Fernando road near Tropic avenue. The NEWS believes that Mr. Jones will meet with success in his new venture and that his business will grow.

The improvement on Central avenue is being rushed. The teams and men are working night and day and the large steam roller is continually in use. The excavating work in the center of the street has been completed as far north as Park avenue. Up to a point almost to Park avenue, the crushed rock has been laid. Four layers of rock are being installed, the coarse rock being laid first and the finer following.

At the meeting of the Tropic Chamber of Commerce last Thursday in Logan's hall a communication from the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce was read asking for literature setting forth the merits of this community. The Tropic society is considering the matter seriously and it is believed that it will not be a great while before something of this nature will be gotten out. The officials of the Tropic Chamber of Commerce inform us that already since the organization of the society they have received communication from eastern manufacturers as to a site for different factories and warehouses.

B. W. Richardson is breaking ground for a fine residence on the south side of Euclid street in the Richardson tract. This home will cost in the neighborhood of $3500 and work will be rushed to completion. Before this home is finished another of about the same value will be started on an adjoining lot. Mr. Richardson informs us that three other classy and modern homes will be erected in the same tract. One of these will be on Garden street and the other two will be on Ceritos street. This is only the beginning of what will prove to be one of the greatest seasons of building ever experienced in this place. Quite a number of those who purchased lots recently in this tract are contemplating putting up homes. In several instances the plans are already being drawn. Mr. Richardson will also put up a number of beautiful homes which will be sold on the installment plan.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON CLUB.

Mrs. G. C. Wattle, Mrs. W. A. McClure and Mrs. G. M. Ballantyne entertained the club at the home of the latter January 5. Mrs. Rosa V. Winterburn of Tropic, read a very comprehensive paper on Some Phases of the Progress of the People. Mrs. Winterburn's paper was very enthusiastically received.

And so the talk continues—one moment incorporation, the next consolidation. On one corner you hear that one faction will win out, and just around that same corner you hear that same faction is going to be beaten to a "fraggle." The wise man takes all this talk in and says nothing, but, very unfortunately, the newspaper is expected to say something whether there is any sense in what it has to say or not. It doubtless makes good reading.

CONSOLIDATION OR INCORPORATION—WHICH?

The faction favoring consolidation to Glendale has been circulating petitions during the past week, and as a result it is claiming great things. These petitions have changed somewhat the proposed boundary line of the proposed annexation district. Instead of reaching to Central avenue on the west it goes just about 150 feet west of Brand boulevard, just far enough to take in those living on the west side of Brand. The boundary line is something like this: It starts from a point on the southerly Glendale limits 150 feet west of Brand and goes south, following the property line down Brand to the Los Angeles city limits. Then it goes about 500 feet southeast along the Los Angeles limits, where it turns and goes some distance north so as to leave out the Forest Lawn cemetery, then it changes its course to northeast to a point almost to Verdugo road and at this point it again joins the Glendale city limits. It will be seen that this practically cuts the Tropic school district in half, taking in only the east half and leaving out the west.

It was stated this week by one favoring consolidation that if consolidation takes place it will only be a matter of a few weeks, perhaps months, before the remainder of Tropic will be wanting to go into Glendale also. Those favoring consolidation claim that they have canvassed the proposed territory and that out of 166 registered voters in the territory, at least three-fourths are favoring the movement. The incorporationists tell us that during this week, just to get the straight of the matter, they took a little time off to also do some canvassing, and that they went over the same ground as their opponents and that out of the first 35 voters that they encountered 25 of them were favoring incorporation and against consolidation. So where do we get off? We believe they are all telling the truth, but, sometimes, figures "suaud lo lie."

One of the leaders for incorporation stated this week that they could beat their opponents in any block in Tropic even though it is the stronghold of their enemies. We also hear that the only reason the line is placed at 150 feet west of Brand boulevard is that one of the leaders for consolidation might be taken in, while along this same strip west of Brand there live fourteen voters who are against consolidation. This was told to us by an incorporationist, of course, but the strange part of it is that he as good as named all of those who didn't want consolidation.

In order to ascertain what would become of the remaining territory, should part of the city be consolidated with Glendale, Mr. F. C. Richardson, clerk of the Tropic school board, wrote Mr. Keppel, county superintendent of schools, and received the following reply:

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 12, 1911.
Mr. F. C. Richardson,
Clerk of Tropic School District,
Tropic, Cal.

Dear Friend: Replying to your questions of yesterday in regard to the effect upon your school district and upon the debt of the school district which might grow out of the incorporation of a part of your district as a city, or the annexation of a part of your district to Glendale City, permit me to say:

First—In the event of the division of your district from any cause, the bonded indebtedness of your district would be a lien against and a tax upon that portion of the school district which would then contain the present school house and grounds. In other words, the school debt goes with the school property. If a portion of Tropic School district be incorporated as a city, that portion will immediately become a separate school district, and the remainder of Tropic School district can then be annexed to the new city for school purposes only, upon a petition by a majority of the heads of families living in the portion of the district not included in the new city. In this way school conditions might be restored to practically the same conditions which they occupied before incorporation.

Second—In like manner, if a portion of Tropic School district be annexed to Glendale City by annexation, it would then be possible to annex the remainder of Tropic School district to Glendale City for school purposes only, upon a petition signed by a majority of the heads of families living in that portion of Tropic School district not annexed to Glendale City as a full part of such city. This action would restore school conditions practically to the condition which they occupy at the present time. The essential difference would be that the board of school trustees of Glendale City School district would manage the school, instead of its being managed by the present board of trustees.

Yours truly,
MARK KEPPLE,
County Supt.
Correct. J. D. FREDERICKS,
District Attorney.

By Hartley Shaw, Chief Deputy.

It will be seen by this that if part of Tropic goes into Glendale that immediately makes another school district of the remainder of Tropic. This new school district will either have to go in with Glendale or erect another school house. If annexation takes place and the remaining part of Tropic still refuses to go in with Glendale, the city of Glendale and its new addition will have to care for the bonded indebtedness on the present Tropic school and grounds. That will be a good investment, however, as the property is valued considerably higher than when it was bought and the school building is worth more than the debt remaining on it, some of this having already been paid off.

We were informed this week that it would be impossible, in a legal manner, for Glendale to call another election similar to the recent one, should the people of Glendale not see fit to set aside more for that purpose. We are told that the amount of something like $470 which the last election cost, consumed almost all of the money in the Glendale treasury set aside for this purpose. The petitions will be presented to the Glendale board of trustees next Monday evening. On next Monday, also, the supervisors will be juggling the question of incorporation which has been presented to them by Tropic citizens. The people will await for the decision of these two bodies with interest.

At the meeting of the Tropic Chamber of Commerce last Thursday night the following campaign committee was selected, J. A. Logan, B. W. Richardson, George Firestone, Charles Cushing, C. R. Carmack, Lee Bancroft, and C. C. Rittenhouse. All matter pertaining to the campaign will be handled by this committee.

This efficient company of workers will set off the fireworks for the incorporationists, while an equally capable body of braves will light the fuses for the opposing forces. The struggle will doubtless be a hard one from every side, but, we think, that when the smoky smoke has cleared away and the smell of murderous powder has been driven from our nostrils by the balmy breezes from the southwest, we will pass a hand over our brow, scratch our head thoughtfully, and exclaim: "It might have been worse; but, say, let's get together, now, and boost."

Resolutions on the Death of Mrs. J. S. Stine

At a regular meeting of the N. P. Banks Woman's Relief Corps, No. 87, held in their hall, on Glendale avenue, January 13, 1911, the following resolutions were adopted:

Again has our "golden chain" been broken. One by one its golden links are falling. Another sister has gone to shed her pure rays in the grand corps on high.

"Life's labor done, Serenely to her final rest she passed."

With the dawning of the new year her hands were folded from all labor, and her spirit entered into a new life, freed from all earth's sorrows.

While submissively bowing to the will of our Heavenly Father, we would fain pay tribute to the memory of our dear sister, Tessa Stine, who but precedes us to our heavenly home, and whose many loving traits of character endeared her to a large circle of friends.

"To live, says the poet, is not all of life,
Not yet to die all of death;
The good that we do, the task well performed,
Stops not with the ceasing of breath."

BASELESS RUMORS.

Glendale, Jan. 15.—Numerous rumors have recently been in circulation concerning the sale of the Glendale and Eagle Rock railway line to one of the other companies.

E. D. Goode, president and general manager of the road, states positively that neither of the other roads have at any time negotiated or even intimated that they desired to purchase the road. He said, however, that the road would in all probability be extended to Crescenta and Monte Vista. The property owners throughout the valley are raising a cash bonus and endeavoring to secure a private right of way and if successful the road will be extended from Verdugo Park to Crescenta immediately.—L.
